Fleming Brothers:
It affords me pleasure to inform you that after using Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills for more than twenty years in my family, that I regard them as being superior to any I have ever used or have seen used. I have not had them constantly and had to try others, and I have tried a good variety, but I have never had any to act so strongly, profitably and nicely as McLane's. I have used them on myself, wife and children with the most gratifying results.
For children, having used them on my own with such easy and happy effect, I would recommend them loose and all. These pills do the work—do it promptly, do it well, and leave no ill effects behind.
As a bile remover, as a liver corrector, as a forerunner preparing the system for quinine, there is no pill or medicine equal to Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. I expect to use them as long as I live, if they continue as good as they have been in the past.
Yours truly,
E. H. GILES,
Pastor of M. E. Church, South, Myers' Station, Tampa District, Florida Conference.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Cleveland Inaugurated with Impressive Ceremonies.

HIS ADDRESS PROVES VERY BRIEF.

The Cabinet Not yet Announced—The Forty Eighth Congress a Thing of the Past—Jeffersonian Simplicity at a Discount

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Washington entertains to-day 100,000 strangers. They began to come before the dedication of Washington's monument, and they have been coming in family parties, in clubs and companies and regiments. Hotels were filled weeks ago and private boarding houses and dwellings have since done what they could to lodge the shelterless and feed the hungry. Nevertheless not a few of the later comers who brought little besides their patriotic memories and exultant hopes tramped the avenues last night from hour to hour, and breakfasted this morning with coffee and sandwich from venders in the markets and on the street corners.

The morning opened hazy, but with a promise of fair weather, which was fulfilled before 11 o'clock. The [illegible] were abroad early, walking and riding from point to point to see what they could of the public buildings, parks and monuments before the great event of the day began. Firing and drumming and marching of clubs and troops were the lively events of the forenoon. A marching [illegible] contributed to the popular political [illegible] served to amuse and interest the participants and crowds.

Whatever it is possible to do with scantling and boards and bunting and gilt to deck a town for such an occasion Washington has undertaken and performed. The harvest of decorators and carpenters began ten days ago, the noise of their pounding and click of their hammers being heard day and night ever since to the moment of starting the procession. At first ugly erections of rough timber broke out all along the proposed line of march from the White house to the capitol, covering windows and doors, stores and dwellings, and hiding porticoes and openings. Upon these were tacked advertisements of seats to rent. Later flags, banners, streamers and tasteful devices in colors concealed the rough woodwork and then building fronts began to blossom out. The completed work is very beautiful, and the stateliness of the avenues has been transformed into a moving mass of gay colors as a welcome to the new administration. The building at the corner of Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, occupied by the pension bureau, was perhaps the most elaborately decorated structure in the city, and the decorations were at once pleasing and unique. Long lines of streamers were suspended between flagstaffs on the roofs and just below on either side of the building, and an immense golden eagle clutched long lines of red, white and blue bunting, which were artistically woven into a network covering the entire building. At the intersection of the lines of bunting shone stars of gold, and framing the whole design were handsome shields bearing the names of the states of the union, all linked together with gilt chains.

OTHER DECORATIONS.

The hotels were tastefully decorated. Willard's was profusely draped in graceful festoons of gaily colored fabrics. Words of welcome, wrought in tinsel, shone above an immense blazing star at the doorway, and a great arch of gas jets spanned the circle enclosing a symbolic owl, head of the American club of Philadelphia. Elegant designs wrought in cunningly woven bunting transformed the marble facade of the Metropolitan into a thing of beauty. The Ebbitt house was fairly covered with flags and pictures, and the other hotels showed great ingenuity of devising pleasing and original decorations.

A great floral ladder reaching to the roof of a business house on Pennsylvania avenue bore upon its rungs the words Sheriff, Mayor, Governor, President, thus graphically symbolizing the life work of the president elect.

All the government buildings on the line of march were gay with bunting. Large American flags encompassed the gray columns of the treasury, and long lines of pennants of every hue of the rainbow ran across the granite front of the great building and relieved its severe architecture by giving it an appearance in keeping with the gala day. Handsome rosettes and designs in particolored bunting adorned the state, war and navy department buildings.

Long before the hour set for the movement of the procession the music of hundreds of bands heading the different organizations seeking their posts blended in one confused roar. Everywhere the shrill voice of the fife and the rattle of the kettle drum were heard.

THE VAST THRONG.

By 10 o'clock the entire population of the city seemed to have deserted their homes and occupied the streets on the line of march. The crowd was something unprecedented even in this city, accustomed to receive the outpourings of the nation's population. Men, women and children pushed and elbowed in the vast throng, yet it was a good natured crowd and evidently disposed to do justice to the occasion. It was willing and anxious to be amused and plucked fun from the slightest incidents. As, for instance, when an unhappy looking individual passed up the avenue in his shirt sleeves, pushing a wheelbarrow in which reclined with a self satisfied air another person bearing a flag. Shouts of laughter and all sorts of gibes and jokes greeted the equipage on his travels. A large crowd congregated around the White house and another equally large around the entrances to the Arlington hotel at an early hour in the morning, for the purpose of obtaining a view of the president and the president elect as they took the places assigned to them in the line. Both men rigidly denied themselves to visitors during the morning.

THE NOTABLES.

The members of the general inauguration committee met at the Arlington hotel before 10 o'clock and placed their services at the disposal of the president elect.

President Arthur breakfasted with his family at the White house.

About 9 o'clock Senator Hawley proceeded to Willard's hotel, where he was joined by Vice President elect Hendricks, and the two proceeded to the White house. They occupied a handsome open barouche lined with crimson satin and drawn by four beautiful white horses. The vice president was heartily cheered all along the short ride to the White house. Just as he was entering the grounds President Arthur's carriage, containing Senators Sherman and Ransom, started to the Arlington for the president elect. This carriage was also an open barouch. It was drawn by four spanking greys from the president's stables. The seats were covered with soft but heavy black and white buffalo robes.

CLEVELAND GOES TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

The senatorial committee were ushered into the presence of the president-elect immediately on arrival at the Arlington, and after a short delay the three gentlemen appeared at the south entrance of the hotel and took their seats in the carriage and were rapidly driven to the White house, where they joined President Arthur, Vice President Hendricks and Senator Hawley. Marshal McM[illegible] met the party at the White house portico and escorted the president elect into the presence of the president. The president elect was received with cheers and waving of handkerchiefs as he drove along Sixteenth street from the hotel. He kept his hat raised in recognition of the compliment.

While the party were at the White house the chief marshal of the procession and his aids rode into the grounds and notified the president elect that the procession was ready to start.

THE PROCESSION.

It was precisely at the hour set, 10:30 o'clock, that the presidential party entered carriages and took the position assigned them in the line. The party entered their carriages as follows: In President Arthur's carriage, President Arthur with President elect Cleveland on his left, Senator Sherman in front of the president and Senator Ransom [illegible] facing the president elect. The second carriage contained the vice-president elect with Senator Hawley on his left.

As the carriages drove out of the gates and entered the line the occupants were greeted with the wildest enthusiasm, men shouting, women screaming and waving their handkerchiefs, and all carried away with the excitement of the moment. The president elect and the vice president elect came in for the principal share of the enthusiasm, and each [illegible] his hat and bowed [illegible] to the crowd which lined both sides of the carriage way.

The first division of the procession escorting the president elect then began its march to the capitol.

A MAGNIFICENT SCENE.

The scene on Pennsylvania avenue almost baffles description. A great surging mass held the sidewalks. Above them stately buildings were covered with cloths of gorgeous colors arranged in [illegible] devices. The soft spring-like breeze lazily stirred innumerable banners and streamers, and pennants in brilliant uniforms dash[ed] hither and thither lending animation to the scene. The organizations were perfect, and the broad avenue with its hard smooth surface was clear of everything that might obstruct the [illegible]. The United States regular troops came first, with the probable object of insuring a clear track. Their ranks extended clear across the avenue and presented a most imposing appearance. The United States marine corps with its magnificent band followed the artillery battalions.

This section of the procession proceeded as far as the treasury department and then halted and came to parade rest in order to afford opportunity for the presidential party to fall in line, when the march was resumed.

The president's elegant carriage was preceded by General Slocum, the chief marshal, and his staff and a troop of United States cavalry. Surrounding the carriages were a dozen mounted police. The party received an ovation all along the line of march.

THE GREAT THRONG.

In approaching avenues and streets, the military companies and society organizations were massed in columns forming brilliant vistas as far as the eye could reach. On elevated stands enterprising photographers had placed their instruments to perpetuate in photographic designs the [illegible] of the stand and the sea of faces that moved continually like the waves of the ocean. This immense throng was variously estimated as to numbers. President Arthur subsequently said it was simply immense, the greatest crowd he ever saw. Senator Hawley as he looked at it said he thought it numbered about 150,000 people.

While waiting for the arrival of the president elect some one would occasionally venture to the front of the platform, and his presence was the signal for repeated cheers.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS DELIVERED.

The stand on which the president was to deliver his address was erected almost on a level with the floors of the senate and the house, and directly in front of the middle entrance to the capitol. It was about 100 feet square, the largest ever before erected for an inauguration, and was covered with chairs. These were occupied by senators, members of the diplomatic corps and judges of the supreme court, members of the house of representatives and press representatives. Before the president left the senate chamber the crowd in front of the stand had increased until it became one solid mass of humanity, extending for 300 feet in front of the stand and more than 100 feet on either side. The trees in the great lawns were filled, and the roofs of the surrounding dwellings were covered. On the roof of the capitol some 200 or 300 men and boys had congregated.

Precisely at 12:30 P. M. the head of the procession appeared coming out of the east door of the capitol. President Arthur stepped to the front of the platform, followed by the president elect and Chief Justice Waite and the sergeant at arms of the senate. All uncovered as they stood facing the crowd, and the vast assemblage cheered.

When the persons who were to officiate at the ceremonies were seated on the platform the president elect began his inaugural address. He was clad in a full suit of black, Prince Albert coat, with a high old fashioned standing collar and cravat. In speaking he held his left hand closed behind him and emphasized his speech by gestures with his right hand. He spoke without manuscript, but occasionally consulted a small piece of paper bearing notes of the heads of his discourse. His voice was clear and resonant and he easily carried his words, and occasionally turned [illegible] at the pauses as if to note the effect of his remarks. He spoke as follows:

THE DOCUMENT IN FULL.

FELLOW CITIZENS: In the presence of this vast assemblage of my countrymen I am about to supplement and seal by the oath which I shall take the manifestation of the will of a great and free people. In the exercise of their power and right to self government they have committed to one of their fellow citizens a supreme and sacred trust, and he here consecrates himself to their service. This impressive ceremony adds little to the solemn sense of responsibility with which I contemplate the duty I owe to all the people of the land. Nothing can relieve me from anxiety lest by any act of mine their interests may suffer, and nothing is needed to strengthen my resolution to engage every faculty and effort in the promotion of their welfare.

Amid party strife the people's choice was made, but its attendant circumstances have demonstrated anew the strength and safety of a government by the people. In each succeeding year it more clearly appears that our democratic principles need no apology, and that in its fearless and faithful application is to be found the surest guaranty of good government. But the best results to be found in the operation of a government wherein every citizen has a share largely depend upon a proper limitation of purely party zeal and effort and a correct appreciation of the time when the heat of partisanship should be merged into the patriotism of the citizen. To-day the executive branch of government is transferred to new keeping, but this is still a government of all the people, and it should be none the less an object of their affectionate solicitude. At this hour the animosities of political strife, the bitterness of partisan defeat and exultation of partisan triumph should be supplanted by ungrudging acquiescence in the popular will and sober conscientious concern for the general weal. Moreover, if from this hour we cheerfully and honestly abandon all sectional prejudice and distrust and determine with confidence in one another to work out harmoniously the achievement of our national destiny, we shall deserve to receive all the benefits which our happy form of government can bestow.

THE CONSTITUTION.

On this auspicious occasion we may well renew the pledge of our devotion to that constitution which, launched by the founders of the republic and consecrated by their prayers and patriotic devotion, has for a century borne the hopes and aspirations of a great people, through prosperity and peace, through the shock of foreign conflicts and the perils of domestic strife. By the father of his country our constitution was commended for adoption as the result of a spirit of amity and mutual concession. In that same spirit it should be administered in order to promote the lasting welfare of the country and to secure the full measure of its priceless benefits to us and to those who will succeed to the blessings of our national life. The large variety of diverse and competing interests subject to federal control, persistently seeking recognition of their claims, need give us no fear that the greatest good to the greatest number will fail to be accomplished if in the halls of national legislation that spirit of amity and mutual concession shall prevail in which the constitution had its birth. If this involves the surrender or postponement of private interests and abandonment of local advantages, compensation will be found in the assurance that thus the common interest is subserved and the general welfare advanced.

DUTIES OF A HIGH NATURE.

In the discharge of my official duty I shall endeavor to be guided by a just and unstrained construction of the constitution, a careful observance of the distinction between the powers granted to the federal government and those reserved to the states or to the people, and by a cautious appreciation of those functions which by the constitution and laws have been especially assigned to the executive branch of the government. But he who takes the oath to-day to preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States only assumes that solemn obligation which every patriotic citizen on the farm, in the workshop, in the busy marts of trade and everywhere, should share with him. The constitution which prescribes his oath, my countrymen, is yours. The government which you have chosen him to administer for a time is yours. The suffrage which executes the will of freemen is yours. The laws and the entire scheme of our civil rule, from the town meeting to the state capitols and the national capital, is yours. Your every voter, as surely as your chief magistrate, under the same high sanction, though in a different sphere, exercises a public trust. Nor is this all. Every citizen owes to the country a vigilant watch and close scrutiny of its public servants and a fair and reasonable estimate of their fidelity and usefulness. Thus is the people's will impressed upon the whole framework of our civil policy, municipal, state and federal. And this is the price of our liberty and the inspiration of our faith in the republic.

A TIMELY REFORM HINT.

It is the duty of those serving the people in a public place closely to limit the public expenditures to the actual needs of a government economically administered, because this bounds the right of a government to exact tribute from the earnings of labor or the property of citizens, and because public extravagance begets extravagance among the people. We should never be ashamed of the simplicity and prudential economies which are best suited to the operation of a republican form of government and most compatible with the mission of the American people. Those who are selected for a limited time to manage public affairs are still of the people and may do much by their example to encourage, consistently with the dignity of their official functions, that plain way of life which, among their fellow citizens, aids integrity and promotes thrift and prosperity.

The genius of our institutions, the needs of our people in their home life and the attention which is demanded for the settlement or development of the resources of our vast territory, dictate the scrupulous avoidance of any departure from that foreign policy commended by history, tradition and the prosperity of our republic. It is the policy of independence, favored by our position and defended by our known love of justice and by our power. It is a policy of peace suitable to our interests. It is a policy of neutrality, rejecting all share in foreign broils and ambitions upon other continents and repelling their intrusion here. It is the policy of Monroe and of Washington and Jefferson—"peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none."

NATIONAL QUESTIONS.

A due regard for the interests and prosperity of all the people demands that our finances shall be established upon such a sound and sensible basis as shall secure the safety and confidence of business interests and make the wage of labor sure and steady, and that our system of revenue be so adjusted as to relieve the people from unnecessary taxation, having a due regard to the interests of capital invested and workingmen employed in American industries, and preventing the accumulation of a surplus in the treasury to tempt extravagance and waste.

Care for the property of the nation and for the needs of future settlers requires that the public domain should be protected from purloining schemes and unlawful occupation.

The conscience of the people demands that the Indians within our boundaries shall be fairly and honestly treated as wards of the government, and their education and civilization promoted with a view to their ultimate citizenship, and that polygamy in the territories, destructive of the family relation and offensive to the moral sense of the civilized world, shall be repressed.

The laws should be rigidly enforced which prohibit the immigration of a servile class to compete with American labor, with no intention of acquiring citizenship, and bringing with them and retaining habits and customs repugnant to our civilization.

The people demand reform in the administration of government and application of business principles to public affairs, and as a means to this end civil service reform should be in good faith enforced. Our citizens have a right to protection from the incompetency of public employes, and those who hold their places solely as a reward for partisan service, and from the corrupting influence of those who promise and the vicious methods of those who expect such rewards. Those who worthily seek public employment have the right to insist that merit and competency shall be recognized instead of party subserviency or the surrender of honest political belief.

In the administration of a government pledged to do equal and exact justice to all men there should be no pretext for anxiety touching the protection of the freedmen in their rights or their security in the enjoyment of their privileges under the constitution and its amendments. All discussion as to their fitness for the place accorded to them as American citizens is idle and unprofitable except as it suggests the necessity for their improvement. The fact that they are citizens entitles them to all the rights due to this relation and charges them with all its duties, obligations and responsibilities.

IN CONCLUSION.

These topics and the constant and ever varying wants of an active and enterprising population may well receive the attention and patriotic endeavor of all who make and execute the federal law. Our duties are practical and call for industrious application, an intelligent perception of the claims of public office, and above all a firm determination, by united action, to secure to all the people of the land the full benefits of the best form of government ever vouchsafed to man. And let us not trust to human effort alone, but humbly acknowledging the power and goodness of Almighty God, who presides over the destiny of nations, and who has at all times been revealed in our country's history, let us invoke his aid and his blessing upon our labors.

THE OATH OF OFFICE.

When Mr. Cleveland first began his inaugural address the crowd applauded whenever he paused to take a breath, but after a while contented itself with cheering him as he made his principal points. His reference to the prohibition of foreign contract labor called out loud and long-continued applause, but his allusion to civil service reform met with a faint response.

The address was very brief, and at precisely two minutes after 1 o'clock it concluded with an invocation of the blessing of Providence.

Turning to the chief justice and bowing to him the president elect said: "I am now prepared to take the oath prescribed by law."

As the chief justice arose to administer the oath the vast assemblage cheered again and again. The president elect stood facing the chief justice with the crowd on his right. Chief Clerk McKenney of the supreme court stood just to one side of Cleveland and held the bible upon which the oath was administered, the president-elect also holding it with his right hand. The bible used is a small morocco covered gilt-edged volume, pretty well worn. It is the bible which Cleveland's mother gave him when he left home as a young man, and at his special request the committee had it in readiness for the ceremony. The crowd observed perfect quiet as the impressive ceremony of administering the oath was taking place, but when it was concluded, and as President Cleveland laid down the bible after reverently kissing it, and shook hands with the chief justice, they cheered loudly and long.

After receiving congratulations President Cleveland was introduced to the remaining judges of the supreme court, to Lieutenant General Sheridan and General Hancock. The other persons on the platform then pressed forward and many of them shook his hands.

As he re-entered the capitol he was again greeted with cheers. He walked to the basement entrance where he first came into the building and entered his carriage to be driven in the procession to the White house.

BACK TO THE WHITE HOUSE.

At the conclusion of the inaugural ceremonies at the capitol the procession escorted the party back to the White house. The two carriages which contained President Cleveland, Ex-President Arthur, Vice President Hendricks and the senate committee on arrangements took positions in the first division, and the line started. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested all along the route. The crowd on the sidewalks had increased so that it was impossible to pass through it. Many people were forced out into the roadway, and the police had all they could do to keep the avenue open for the procession.

When the head of the line reached Fifteenth street a halt was made and the carriage containing the president and the ex president left the line and proceeded by way of Executive avenue to the White house, which the party entered.

The vice-president's carriage proceeded up Fifteenth street nearly to New York avenue before leaving the line. Mr. Hendricks, however, soon joined the president at the White house.

THE PROCESSION REVIEWED.

When everything was in readiness the entire party proceeded to the reviewing stand on Pennsylvania avenue directly in front of the mansion, and the order was given for the line to move. The reviewing stand had been profusely decorated with flags and bunting, and presented a beautiful appearance. The president and ex president were placed on the platform, which was covered with flags so as to make a handsome canopy, and at the same time so arranged as to afford a clear and unobstructed view of the procession. Arm chairs were placed upon it for their use, but the president remained standing during the review. Ex President Arthur sat on his left. Vice President Hendricks and members of his household occupied seats to the right and just back of the president, while families and friends of the president and ex president sat in the front row on the right.

Among those who occupied seats on the presidential stand were Secretaries Frelinghuysen, McCulloch, Lincoln, Chandler and Teller, Postmaster General Hatton, Lieutenant General Sheridan, Major General Hancock, Daniel Manning of New York, Mr. Vilas of Wisconsin, Mr. Endicott of Massachusetts, Senators Bayard and Garland, Colonel Lamont, Mayor Grace and ex Mayor Cooper of New York and a large number of other prominent persons, including many officers of the army and navy and the diplomatic corps. There were a great many ladies on the stand, and their rich costumes added to the brilliancy of the scene. It is estimated that there were on the stand about 1000 persons.

THE PROCESSION PASSES.

It was ten minutes past 3 o'clock when the president, escorted by Colonel Berrett of the inaugural committee, took his place at the front of the stand and the head of the procession started from the corner of Fifteenth street to pass in review. The president's appearance was the signal for a great shout from the concourse of people who had gathered in front of the stand and filled the street for several hundred yards both ways. The president quietly bowed his acknowledgments.

A good deal of confusion was caused in the vicinity of the grand stand by the efforts of the police to clear the street for the approaching procession. The work was finally accomplished, but with great difficulty, mounted police riding into the dense throng and driving the people back with batons.

The review from the president's stand was a grand sight, and it was the generally expressed opinion that no more brilliant pageant had ever been seen in this country. All organizations gave the marching salute as they passed the grand stand and the president recognized the compliment by raising his hat.

The first division, composed of regular United States troops and local military organizations, presented a fine appearance. As they passed the president saluted the chief marshal and his aids. The second division was composed entirely of the Pennsylvania national guard. There were about [illegible]00 in this division, and their good marching and fine military bearing were [illegible] on all sides. Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania rode at the head of the division and by his side rode ex-Governor Hartranft. They were recognized as they neared the reviewing stand and loudly cheered. The president and Governor Pattison exchanged salutes. The president also raised his hat as a token of respect to the battle torn flags of the Thirteenth and Eighteenth, and several other regiments of this division.

THE THIRD DIVISION.

General Fitzhugh Lee, commanding the third division, received an ovation from the crowd in and around the president's stand. He bowed to the president and the latter raised his hat in return. The president paid the same compliment to the Sixty-ninth New York regiment, the Rochambeau grenadiers and the Busch Zouaves of St. Louis. A large number of colored troops were included in the third division, and their soldierly bearing and good marching elicited much praise from the spectators. The New Jersey soldiers in their plain uniforms with red blankets rolled above their knapsacks attracted attention, and the Washington Infantry of Pittsburg, clad in navy blue with black shakos. The Fifth Maryland, about 600 strong, in black helmets and blue suits, who are old favorites of this city, were warmly welcomed. The striking uniform of olive green with black plumes, which attracted much attention, was worn by the Clark guard of Augusta, Georgia. The New York Sixty-ninth regiment was in this division, about 600 strong, and its fine bearing and excellent marching fully met the expectations which had been raised by the appearance of this regiment. The grenadiers Rochambeau of New York were also well received. The Busch zouaves of St. Louis wore the most brilliant uniform of the kind in the procession. Company C, Sixteenth Ohio national guards, in showy uniform of gray, closed this division of the procession.

THE LAST DIVISION.

The fourth and last division was composed entirely of civic organizations and was commanded by Major Thomas J. Luttrell. The Jackson democratic association of the District of Columbia, armed with hickory sticks, acted as escort to the New York organizations. After them came 85 Tammany braves in war paint and feathers, bearing a Tammany banner. The Tammany men, who numbered about 1000, carried silver headed sticks at their shoulders and marched nine abreast. They were followed by the [illegible] knickerbockers in their quaint ancient costume, carrying long, gold headed staves, with which they beat marching time on the asphalt pavement. Irving hall was represented by about 1000 gentlemen, all wearing silk hats and spring overcoats and carrying canes. Gilmore's immense band heralded the approach of the county democracy long before they were visible. Fifteen hundred men in light grey overcoats and silk hats, carrying canes with Cleveland's head wrought in silver, and wearing purple and gold badges on the lapels of their coats, represented this branch of the New York democracy. Albany phalanx, numbering eighty men, presented a neat appearance clad in white coats and white beavers and carrying silk umbrellas. The Kings county democracy had about 150 men in line dressed in dark blue overcoats and carrying the inevitable cane. The Buffalo legion in dark clothes and silk hats brought up the rear.

A NOVEL FEATURE.

A notable feature of the procession was the flag cavalry of the District of Columbia, in which the electoral votes of the states that furnished Cleveland's majorities were represented by horsemen, one for each vote, arranged in states by colors. They were followed by the Cleveland and Hendricks club of Lawrenceville, Va., and by a number of mounted [illegible] wearing colored sashes. The last brigade was composed of the veteran firemen's association of New York, drawing three old engines, the district fire department and the Baltimore fire company, followed by civic organizations.

Taken all in all, as a combined military and civic display the procession was undoubtedly the largest and finest ever seen in Washington. The number of men who marched past the presidential stand is estimated at [illegible]000.

Vice President Hendricks felt somewhat fatigued and retired to the executive mansion for rest before all the civic organizations passed. Many other persons also left the stand before the parade was over because of weariness.

At the conclusion of the review the president and party proceeded to the dining room of the White house, where they partook of a luncheon ordered for them by Ex-President Arthur. There were present, besides members of Ex-President Arthur's cabinet, Mr. Vilas, Mr. Manning, Mr. Lamont and several others.

THE BALL IN THE EVENING.

A Fitting Climax to the Round of Ceremonials—Bewildering Scenes.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The brilliant finale of the inauguration ceremonies was held to-night. It put the cap sheaf of gayety on the more formal and serious though grand ceremonial which had preceded it. Beauty lent its aid to crown the triumph of the incoming administration, and amid the bright festivities of the ball room the celebration of the day came to a close.

The ball was held in the unfinished new pension building, an immense structure enclosing a rectangular court yard more than 300 feet long by over 100 feet in width. As the door opens on the interior the eye is dazzled by the sudden blaze of light and color, and the mind is confused by the immensity of the scene revealed to it at a glance.

The hall is 316 feet long by 116 feet wide and is lighted by sixty gigantic gasburners of 300 candle power each, which are suspended from a roof whose peak is lost to sight 90 feet above the floor, in a forest of streamers and flags. On an acre of waxed floor several thousand couples with brilliant toilets are moving about in the mazes of the dance, while thousands more circle around on the outskirts in ceaseless promenade, and other thousands look down on them from the surrounding balconies. These form the grand framework of an ensemble which, bursting suddenly on one's view, is magnificently bewildering.

Decorations cover the whole interior with the exception of the roof, and this is almost hidden from view by a network of streamers, flags and bunting. All is brilliant coloring, in which the red, white and blue tints of the American flag predominate, but are toned down by the contrasting dark green of natural garlands hung in festoons, and of the foliage of tropical plants which are banked about the supports of the roof and in corners of the hall, and are blended with the rich dark hues of velvet hangings and the glossy sheen of silk and damask draperies. The wealth of colors is relieved against a background of pure white muslin and is blended into harmony and softness under the diffused light of lamps which hang from the roof like great globes of fire.

The entire scene forms a brilliant setting for the rich toilets of the dancers and promenaders, and the everchanging panorama on the floor. Banks of tropical plants surround the bases of eight large columns which support the roof, and wreaths of evergreens are twined around the columns from base to capitol. On the broad faces of the columns leaves of palm are scattered with unique effect.

At the east end of the hall an immense plate glass mirror sixteen feet high and ten wide, with beveled edges three inches wide and a frame composed of 600 pieces of cut glass, rises from masses of palms and flowers against a background of deep crimson and reflects from its surface the lights and color of the ball room.

The music stands are hung with rich green and purple silk damasks, and flags are twined about their supports. In each of the four corners of the ball room tiers of stands reaching to the height of the balcony are placed, and on these palms and ferns are massed in rich confusion.

The richest gem of the decorations, however, is on the front of the balcony. Along the entire length around the ball room there is stretched on this balcony a deep band of maroon velvet two yards wide, heavily embroidered for half its depth with gold thread in elegant design. The velvet was made in Lyons, France, and was imported for the special purpose of decoration, and its rich coloring is the harmonizing tone of the whole mass of color. The background of this balcony is the [illegible] colored bunting with which the walls are hung. Outlined against this are small pillars which enclose the balcony and support the one above it. To each of these is suspended an American silk standard, surmounted by a circular shield on which is blazoned the arms of one of the states or territories. Garlands of evergreens hang in festoons from the balcony and are twined about the pillars, which are further decked with masses of palms at their bases.

At the height of the balcony, at one end of the hall, is a large spread eagle, formed of gas jets, and at the other end a five-pointed star, formed in the same manner. Over all is a forest of streamers, flags and buntings, which hang from the peak of the roof, from girders and from rafters. Flags project downward from the peak of the roof, and from these spiral streamers of all colors in profusion.

Seven large floral pieces placed in various parts of the ball room represent the arms of the several executive departments.

THE PRESIDENT'S PART.

The rooms set apart by the committee for the use of the president are magnificently decorated, and the air is heavy with the perfume of flowers, which abound everywhere massed in huge stands distributed about the room.

The promenade concert opened the festivities of the evening and was continued from 8 to 11 P. M., during which time the president held a levee in the reception room. Dancing was begun upon conclusion of the concert. It was half past 10 when President Cleveland arrived at the ball room. He was immediately escorted to the president's room, where for half an hour he held an informal reception, members of the committee and a small number of distinguished persons being present. The president was accompanied by Miss Cleveland and Mrs. Hoyt, his sisters, and by his brother, Rev. W. A. Cleveland, and wife and their two sons, Mr. Hastings, his nephew, and Miss Hastings, Miss Nellie Yeomans and Lizzie Yeomans, Mr. and Mrs. Bacon, the president's brother in law and wife, of Toledo, and Colonel and Mrs. Lamont. About the same time ex-President Arthur arrived, and he too was escorted to the president's room. With him were members of the cabinet. Vice President Hendricks arrived about the same time and joined the president. In the room at this time was a large and distinguished gathering, including persons of the most diverse shades of political opinions. Besides the persons already named there were present Senator Bayard, Colonel Vilas of Wisconsin, General and Mrs. Sheridan, General Rosecrans, Hon. Daniel Manning and wife, Senator Pendleton, Hon. Richard T. Merrick, Senator Wade Hampton, Senator Brown of Georgia, Justice Field of the supreme court and Speaker and Mrs. Carlisle. There was no formal reception by President Cleveland, but a large number of persons pressed about him, and some of the gentlemen standing in the immediate vicinity made presentations.

After a half hour spent in this manner the room became overcrowded, and the president and vice-president, the former escorted by Senator Pendleton and Richard T. Merrick, and the latter by Representative Eaton and S. V. Niles, left the room and made the round of the ballroom, the band playing "Hail to the Chief." After the presidential party had left the reception room the crowd continued to pour into it through other doors, unaware that Cleveland had left. Standing in the center of the room was Bayard, and the crowd pressed about him and shook hands with him as they passed, apparently under the impression that he was Vice President Hendricks. When the senator at last discovered [illegible] was being mistaken for somebody else he abandoned the room.

The scene in the ball room at this time was exceedingly brilliant. The large hall was completely filled with a constantly moving crowd, numbering several thousands, while from the balconies thousands more looked down on the scene. The bright toilets of the ladies, the brilliant uniforms of the diplomats and army and navy officers, the flowers, glittering jewels, decorations and lights were prominent features of the scene long to be remembered.

The president, after making a tour of the ball room, retired to the reception room and for a little while received all who came to pay respects, but shortly after 11 he and his party left the building, and Vice President Hendricks and his party returned.

Dancing was continued until a very late hour. Ten thousand appears to be a very low estimate of the number of persons present in the ball room and balconies during the evening, among whom were many members of congress and government officials with ladies of their families.

THE FIREWORKS.

The Greatest Exhibition of the Kind Ever Witnessed in America.

The public celebration of the day ended with a display of fireworks that in volume and variety is said to have excelled any former pyrotechnical exhibition upon this continent. Withal it was successful to the minutest detail. The scene of the exhibition was an area of two or three hundred acres sloping gently away from the south front of the treasury, executive mansion and the state department.

Uncounted crowds began early to find their way toward the spot from every quarter of the city. For an hour or more they waited, commenting meanwhile upon the singular appearance of the monument 100 rods beyond the fireworks enclosure. The lower part of the shaft was not visible, but all above was dimly outlined like the ghost of itself, against the black sky and reflecting to its peak the rays of electric lights in the city half a mile away. It seemed enormously higher than by daylight and to have not the slightest relation to terrestrial things.

When preparations were complete and the display advertised began, the people in charge had the good taste to leave no intermissions. Jack o' Lanterns danced from place to place about the enclosure, and wherever one paused an explosion followed. Rockets, balloons, mines, fountains, bombs, batteries and shells were sent heavenward in volleys for half an hour, filling the air with showers of fire. Explosions sometimes half a mile above the earth took place, and constellations numbering hundreds of beautifully tinted stars floated away over the Potomac, wafted by the gentle northern breeze.

A FIERY PORTRAIT OF JEFFERSON.

Three set pieces of mammoth proportions were among the last and grandest features of the entertainment. The first was "Jefferson." There was a fizz and a spatter audible a mile away as Jack O'Lantern touched his torch to the piece, and then a mammoth face in points of white, encircled by an oval frame in red with banners in colors festooned gracefully about it, burst out of the darkness. It glowed for a minute in full brilliancy, then an eye went out with an explosion, followed by a portion of the nose and last of all the blue stars of the banners. The face of the titular patron of simplicity and unostentation was probably not recognizable to the masses of spectators, but when the letters of his name beneath were made out his memory was honored in prolonged cheers.

One of the large pieces represented the national capitol with excellent portraits of the president and vice-president flanked by mottoes and emblems. This piece was one hundred and sixty feet long by 75 in hight, the largest set piece ever fired in America. The flight of 5000 rockets at once, forming a vast floral bouquet in the heavens, terminated the display.

The voluntary dispersion of the multitude when gathered in a park open on all sides would seem to be a simple affair and easy enough of accomplishment, but the experience of the evening proved the contrary. Carriages became entangled with each other and pedestrians wandered about in bewilderment trying to find their way around, through or out of the crushes which occurred in hundreds of places. No one was hurt so far as known, but many ludicrous episodes occurred. Family parties became separated, wives and husbands lost from each other, and parents found themselves leading children not their own, and calls of one to another in the dark sometimes indicated distress or fear. But the people were for the most part exceedingly jolly, and laughed at themselves and each other as if it were all parts of the programme.

A PLEASING SURPRISE.

About 8:30, just as the immense crowd was returning from the exhibition of fireworks at the White lot, a flambeau club came marching in open order down Fifteenth street between the Corcoran building and the treasury department, in a perfect tornado of fire accompanied by an incessant volley of explosives and a continuous hissing roar of ascending rockets. Every member of the club had slung over his shoulder a capacious white bag filled with rockets, Roman candles, red and green fire, Catherine wheels, torpedoes, bombs and fireworks of every conceivable description, which were lighted on portable frames or discharged from sheet iron tubes with such never slackening rapidity as to literally fill the street with a hurricane of fiery projections and a dense cloud of smoke, through which could be only dimly seen the white spectral uniforms of the club. The marching was perfect in time and regularity, the incessant discharge of fireworks not being allowed to interfere in the least degree with the procession's movement. People in vehicles fled in terror before the advancing column of smoke and flame, which was headed by two or three high blazing wheels, and from every part of which burst fire and explosions. The club was constantly and skillfully supplied with fresh ammunition from a large wagon which followed it, and as it wheeled from Fifteenth street into Pennsylvania avenue in a glare of red fire amid the shouts of the vast multitude of spectators it suggested a moving British square attacked on all sides at night and defending itself with musketry, bombs, rockets and hand grenades. It was one of the most striking features of the whole pyrotechnic display, and the club was followed down Pennsylvania avenue by at least 10,000 people.

LAST DAY OF CONGRESS

General Grant Placed on the Retired List—An Extra Session Avoided.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The remaining committee amendments to the river and harbor bill were agreed to.

Jones (Nevada) said it was clear that further discussion of this bill was the merest waste of time. He therefore moved to lay it on the table. The motion was defeated—yeas 17, nays 3.

A message from the house announced agreement on the postoffice appropriation bill on every point of difference except that relating to postal ten cent stamps for letters requiring special haste in delivery.

Plumb moved that the senate recede on this; agreed to.

Cullom called up his resolution to authorize the committee on transportation routes to the seaboard to sit during recess of congress; agreed to.

Consideration of the river and harbor bill was resumed at 7 o'clock.

Hale submitted a final conference report on the deficiency bill, showing that all differences were adjusted.

The senate went into executive session, and when the doors reopened a recess was taken until [illegible]:30.

DIFFERENCES ADJUSTED.

After recess Hale submitted a conference report on the naval appropriation bill, announcing adjustment of differences between the two houses, the house having receded on all substantial points. The report was agreed to.

The chair (Edmunds) annexed his signature to the appropriation bill and the legislative, executive and judicial bill, both of which during recess had been reported from conference, all differences having been adjusted, the house receding but with minor amendments which were agreed to by the senate.

After a short delay Conger called up the river and harbor bill.

Plumb moved to lay the bill on the table; agreed to—yeas 28, nays 20.

Allison presented a conference report on the sundry civil bill showing adjustment of all differences between the houses by mutual concession.

GRANT PLACED ON THE RETIRED LIST.

On motion of Morrill the chair appointed a committee of two senators to act with such committee as the house may appoint to notify the president of the United States that congress, having finished its business, was now ready to adjourn. The senators appointed were Morrill and Harris.

At 11:30 a message from the house announced the passage of the bill authorizing the president to place one person on the retired list of the army. [Applause.] The bill was read at length.

The chair stated that he had received a communication which would now be read. He handed the communication to the chief clerk, who read as follows:

To the Hon. George F. Edmunds, President pro tem. of the United States Senate: The accompanying communication, although in executive session, may be read in open session.
CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

President pro tem. of the senate: "Manifestations of applause are not in order."

The clerk read as follows: To the senate of the United States:—I nominate U. S. Grant for general commanding the armies of the United States, to be general on the retired list, with the full pay of such rank.
CHESTER A. ARTHUR.
EXECUTIVE MANSION, March 4, 1885.

The president pro tem. of the senate then announced that the nomination would be considered in open session. "The question is, will the senate advise and consent to this appointment? All senators in favor will say 'aye.'" A storm of ayes. "All opposed 'no.'" A dead silence. "The ayes have it unanimously." This announcement was received with applause.

CEREMONIES IN THE SENATE CHAMBER.

A little before 11 the doors of the president's gallery were opened and people entitled to admission were escorted to it. Among them were Miss Cleveland and Mrs. Hoyt, sisters of the president elect, Rev. W. A. Cleveland and wife and their two sons, Mr. Hastings, nephew of the president elect, Miss Hastings, Miss Nellie Yeomans and Miss Annie Yeomans, his nieces, Mr. and Mrs. Bacon of Toledo and Colonel and Mrs. Lamont. The blue tapestried seats of the diplomatic gallery remained longest vacant, but they too were filled by a quarter past 11.

A quorum of the senators having arrived, the business of the senate proceeded with frequent and long interruptions while waiting the return of conferees on the appropriation bills.

Events of the early proceedings which were not upon the programme were the outbreaks of applause which greeted the announcement of the passage of the Grant retirement bill and the reception of the president's message nominating General Grant to the newly created vacancy. The applause, which was hearty and prolonged, was not suppressed by Edmunds.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE PRESIDENT ELECT.

President Arthur was now announced, and his coming was greeted with clapping of hands, in recognition of which he bowed gracefully to the assemblage. A moment later and the buzz of conversation was again suspended in anticipation of the announcement of the president-elect of the United States. Mr. Cleveland had already entered the hall with his escort and halted within sight of the assemblage while his arrival was being announced. Applause, clapping of hands first and then cheers loud and prolonged, welcomed them. Then a stalwart voice in the gallery arose above the din and cried three cheers for Grover Cleveland. This was not held by the assemblage to be in good taste, and Edmunds made a proclamation that order must be preserved or the galleries cleared.

The vice president-elect was escorted to the chamber, and without delay, but with a solemnity and decorum befitting the occasion, the oath was administered to him by the president pro tem.

The arrival of the diplomatic corps, clad in their uniforms varying from the silk dresses and mandarin caps of the Chinese to the gorgeous gold bedecked dresses of Europeans, was another event.

Then the act of turning back the hands of the senate clock was performed by the veteran keeper, Captain Isaac Bassett. The supreme court justices were placed upon the right front of the chair.

EDMUNDS' FAREWELL SPEECH.

When Cleveland and Hendricks appeared in the senate chamber Senator Edmunds turned to the front and said: "Senators—We are now close upon another epoch in the course of the republic. Under the constitution this brief period of our national existence has, by the exertion of co-ordinate forces of our national and state systems, brought the experiment of a free social and political government to an established and secure triumph. I think I may safely say for us all that we believe the long years to come in the future of the republic will more and more increase the peace, liberty, order and sincerity of all the people of our country, but perhaps it may not be improper for me to say that in view of our recent experiences it may be doubted whether congress can congratulate itself on being the best example of a legislative body conducting its business with that deliberate and timely diligence which is the inseparable handmaid of wisdom and justice as well in the making as in the administration of laws. It is, I think, an evil of large and growing proportions, that measures of the greatest importance, requiring much time for proper examination and discussion in detail, are brought to our consideration so late that it is not possible to deal with them intelligently, and which we are tempted, over-tempted, I fear, to enact into laws, in the hope that fortune, rather than time, study and reflection, will take care that the republic suffer no detriment. The chair heard, with deep sensibility, of the resolution you have kindly adopted concerning the administration of his duties, and he begs to express sincerely his gratitude for it. If in the course of the execution of his duties he has (as sometimes he may have done) wounded the feelings of any senator or officer of the senate, he can truly say he has not intentionally given offense to anyone, and in closing this session of the senate he assures every senator, whether retiring or continuing in public duty, that he wishes for him every friendly good wish and hopes that he may long enjoy all the happiness that can be realized by a citizen or senator. He now declares the senate adjourned."

EXTRA SESSION CONVENED.

Hendricks took the gavel and called the senate to order in extra session.

Prayer was offered by the chaplain, after which the vice president made a brief address.

New senators were sworn in.

After the reading of a message of the president convening the senate the procession was formed and filed its way toward a platform on the portico of the capitol.

The senate adjourned immediately on its return from the platform. Therefore there will be no cabinet nominations to-day.

House.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The house remained in session all night. The report on the naval bill was not agreed to and a further conference was ordered.

At 7 o'clock consideration of the sundry civil bill was resumed. Budd moved to concur in all the public building amendments of the senate except one, this being reserved in order that opportunity might be obtained to offer amendments; agreed to, 77 to 58.

It was then agreed by unanimous consent that members should be permitted to offer their amendments and have them voted upon, it being especially stipulated that yeas and nays should not be called and that no question of a quorum should be raised.

Pending further action, conference reports on the fortification and deficiency appropriation bills were submitted and agreed to.

The list of the senate public building amendments being for a building at Winona, Minn., having been read, Stockslager offered an amendment appropriating $100,000 for a building at New Albany, Ind.; agreed to, 56 to 26.

Blackburn offered an amendment appropriating $1[illegible]0,000 for a building at Lexington, Kentucky; agreed to.

Keifer offered an amendment appropriating $100,000 for a building at Springfield, Ohio; agreed to, 53 to 42.

During the offering of these amendments and voting upon them there was intense confusion and excitement in the house—Thompson and Warner (Ohio) demanding a quorum in each case, and protesting that the house had no power to bind itself as had been done by agreement. This aroused those members who had been instrumental in securing the agreement, and Cassidy, Budd and others stood in the space in front of the clerk's desk gesticulating violently and charging their opponents with bad faith.

RANDALL READS A LECTURE.

At 8 o'clock Randall advanced to the front of the house and protested earnestly against what he characterized as most unseemly procedure. The house was proceeding to prevent the sundry civil bill from being adopted, and was forcing an extra session, and that was being done by this demand of individuals for public buildings. "I ask the house," continued Randall, impassionately, "to let me get possession of this bill in order that I may send it to the senate, secure conference and avoid an extra session." [Applause.]

He then moved to suspend the rules to adopt amendments already offered and send the bill to conference. The motion was agreed to.

Hutchins submitted a conference report on the naval appropriations bill; agreed to.

Horr offered the following resolution: "That the thanks of this congress are hereby tendered Hon. John G. Carlisle, speaker, for the courtesy with which he has treated all its members and for the ability and fairness with which he has presided over the deliberations of the house during the Forty-eighth congress."

The vote was taken standing, and amid loud continued applause Speaker pro tem. Hatch declared the resolution adopted unanimously by the 325 representatives of the Forty-eighth congress.

RANDALL SUBMITS A REPORT.

Randall submitted a conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill. Of the 231 amendments placed upon the bill by the senate, agreement had been reached as to 171, leaving sixty still in controversy. The sixty amendments on which an agreement had not been reached involved an appropriation of $3,733,000. Of these thirty-nine were for public buildings, which would require an expenditure of $1,637,000.

For two hours and a half matters went on very smoothly. The report of the conference committee was agreed to, and the house proceeded to consider the amendments upon which no agreement had been reached.

The house insisted on its disagreement in each case until the amendments relative to public buildings were reached. Randall asked that they be considered in gross, but objection was made by those members who desired to amend the amendments with new propositions.

Randall thereupon called the previous question on the first of the senate amendments, but a point of "no quorum" having been raised, further consideration of the amendments was postponed.

Randall submitted a conference report on the naval appropriation bill announcing a disagreement. As the clerk was reading the report, daylight began to stream into the chamber and the keepers busied themselves in awakening many persons who had spent the night in the galleries, and who had enjoyed quiet naps on benches, their heads resting on overcoats and other improvised pillows. New arrivals made their appearance, and the house began to wear a brighter aspect, although the air in the chamber was stifling. Members who had been sleeping in the cloak rooms and lobbies came into the hall refreshed, and proceeded to the restaurant to secure breakfast.

THE HOUSE ADJOURNS SINE DIE.

Randall submitted a conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill. He refrained from making any remarks respecting it, except to say that when this report was adopted the house would have finally acted on every appropriation bill. [Applause.] The report was adopted.

Randall then asked unanimous consent to take from the speaker's table and pass the Grant retirement bill. [Applause.]

There was some delay owing to a desire to bring up one of the contested election cases, but finally objections were waived, and Randall, announcing all the appropriation bills passed, the house adjourned sine die.

THE RETIRING ADMINISTRATION.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—In view of the fact that Secretary Teller to-day took his seat as member of the senate the president this forenoon accepted his resignation as secretary of the interior. The resignations of the other members of the cabinet were referred to President Cleveland for his action.

The last official act of President Arthur was signing house bill 7220, regulating appeals from the supreme courts of the several territories.

SENATORS SWORN IN.

Newly elected senators were sworn in to-day: Joseph C. S. Blackburn, Kentucky; J. B. Eustis, Louisiana; William M. Evarts, New York; James K. Jones, Arkansas; Henry B. Payne, Ohio; John C. Spooner, Wisconsin; Leland Stanford, California; Henry M. Teller, Colorado, and Ephriam K. Wilson, Maryland.

Re-elected senators sworn in were William B. Allison, Iowa; Joseph E. Brown, Georgia; Wilkinson Call, Florida; J. Donald Cameron, Pennsylvania; Wade Hampton, South Carolina; John J. Ingalls, Kansas; John P. Jones, Nevada; Justin S. Morrill, Vermont; Orville H. Platt, Connecticut; James L. Pugh, Alabama; Zebulon B. Vance, North Carolina; George G. Vest, Missouri, and D. W. Voorhees, Indiana.

Oh maiden with grim teeth, avaunt!
Though fair you seem to look upon,
Because you don't use SOZODONT.
The sweetness of your mouth is gone,
Your breath is heavy, and, from this,
Your lips no more invite a kiss.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH [illegible] 1885

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

President Cleveland delivers a very good inaugural address. It is good because it is in the main directly in accord with the policy pursued by the republican party during the last twenty-four years. If his administration is to be conducted on this basis it will have an honorable career, though it will be unsatisfactory to his party, for what his party wants is the restoration of the old regime,—in other words, the fruits of the victory."

In this address there is nothing that might not be appropriately delivered by a republican president; nothing, indeed, that has not been frequently delivered by republican presidents. The depth and indelibility of the impression made by the republican party upon the policy of the country are singularly attested by an address which, in its cast, in its spirit, in its tone, is at an infinite distance from the democracy of other days.

What is really striking in the address is its contrast with the actual spirit and purposes which the party has ever cherished. In the course of its long opposition to the republican party the democratic party has denounced every act that has been wrought into the policy of the government and the history of the country. It has predicted ruinous consequences at every step. All legislation has been wrong, every amendment of the constitution has been an attack on the spirit of that sacred instrument, the whole course of republican policy has been subversive of the fundamental principles of the government. Yet now, when responsibility is thrown upon the democratic party, what important act or measure in the history of the past will it dare even to make an attempt to undo? In what important particular will it reverse republican policy? It may be presumed that it would restore the status of 1860 if it could, since not to do so if it could would be to confess its own follies in opposing all that has been accomplished since it last was in power. But its more sagacious leaders know that it can do nothing at all upon the lines of its old policy, and so when President Cleveland speaks, he speaks as a republican president might. But still there is a wide difference between the two parties in their constitution, their policy and their spirit. The actual status of the country is republican, not democratic, its great moral forces are republican, not democratic, the spirit of its institutions, modified by the great events of a quarter of a century, is republican, not democratic. The democratic party, coming into possession of the government, cannot feel at home. It is a stranger to the new, liberal and enlightened regime, yet it is only by adoption of a spirit and policy wholly alien to it and hitherto bitterly opposed by it, that it can carry on the government with any degree of success.

What strikes us further is the incongruity of the utterances of the new president with the actual status of his party. Sectional feeling, he says, ought to disappear. So it ought. And yet the organization of sectional feeling in the southern states has given Mr Cleveland the presidency, and is depended on as the chief and permanent bulwark of his party. The rights of the blacks in the south, he says, must be respected. Yet who save his own party, respects them not? Republicans, who gave the blacks all their rights—gave them against democratic protest and in spite of democratic opposition—are not accused of any purpose to deprive the blacks of their rights. The mere mention by President Cleveland of the fact that the rights of the blacks must be protected is, therefore, a suggestion to his own party that has all the sting of a reproach. From it, too, the corollary inevitably comes that if the rights of the blacks had been respected Mr Cleveland would not be president.

It is now to be seen whether the promise of the president or the spirit of his party will prevail. Yet there cannot be much room for doubt. Sectional feeling will not disappear, it will be intensified, by the maintenance of a solid body of sixteen states, always surely democratic. The rights of the blacks will hardly be protected by practices which suppress their rights—and the rights of all republicans, white and black—in order to make sure that there shall be no break in the line of the solid south. Civil service reform will not have brilliant prospects under an administration besieged to make changes in the public service to reward democrats for party work. The honest dollar will have but a sorry chance with a party which has just repudiated the suggestion of its president to stop the coinage of short-weight silver. When mere generalization about the tariff must give place to real effort to cut off the benefits of protection enjoyed by manufacturers, and yet secure full wages for labor, then the immense difficulties of that subject will appear, to defeat unguarded promises. The vote cast in the name of the democratic party last fall, in the northern states, represented simply an aggregate of loose and indefinite opinion, concentrated for the occasion by the spirit of opposition. When there shall be, as there soon must be, an attempt to concentrate this mass of variant opinion on definite objects, there will be at once a test of the coherency of the democratic party in the northern states. For southern democrats there will be sufficient coherence in the reminiscences of slavery and hatred of the party that represented the government at the time of their subjugation, and conferred upon the colored population these rights which President Cleveland now says must be preserved.

VACANCIES IN THE SENATE

The failure to elect a senator in this state has excited considerable interest in Washington, and the situation in Illinois, where a similar failure is regarded as possible, and the fact that New Hampshire does not elect a senator to take Mr Blair's place till June adds further interest to the question. But even if no senators should appear on March 4 in place of Slater of Oregon, Logan of Illinois and Blair of New Hampshire, the republicans would still have 37 and the democrats only 34, a republican majority of three without the votes of Mahone and Riddleberger, who are both expected to continue with the republicans. And if they do the republican majority will be five, if not it would sink to one. The governor of New Hampshire will undoubtedly make an appointment. His right to do this was considered at great length in the senate at the first session of the forty-sixth congress, beginning March, 1879, on the question of admitting Mr Bell. The course of the debate upon the right of a state to be fully represented in the senate and of the governor to appoint when from any cause a legislature has not elected a senator was such as to make it regarded in Washington now as reasonably certain that the senate will receive the man whom Governor Moody may appoint to succeed Senator Slater, though it would be likely to give rise to prolonged debate.

If the legislature of Illinois should fail to elect, a different question about the governor's power to appoint would be presented for the vacancy caused by the expiration of Senator Logan's term is not one that occurs during the recess of the legislature. If Bayard, Garland and Lamar are called to the cabinet there will be three vacancies in the senate at the beginning of the executive session. The Delaware and Arkansas legislatures are in session, and the vacancies in those states will be filled by election. The legislature of Mississippi is not in session and the governor would have to fill the vacancy, if Lamar goes into the cabinet. But even if no senator should be seated in the vacancies that exist in the three states named, the republicans would still have a majority of three without counting Mahone and Riddleberger, and [illegible] of one if these two men [illegible] to be democrats.

[illegible] of Atlanta, Ga., who bears a striking resemblance to John Wilkes Booth, has been much annoyed by the mistake made on his account since the assassination of Lincoln. [illegible] responded to a request from the [illegible] newspaper to furnish "the best thing he ever read in ten lines or less, except from the Bible and Shakespeare, by quoting the following paragraph from President Lincoln's first inaugural: "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

MECHANICS' LIEN LAW

The mechanics' lien law adopted by the legislature is in many of its features a good measure, but it is not entirely free from objections. Its merits are perfect protection for mechanics, laborers and material men, simplicity of construction which makes it easily understood, and its direct and inexpensive plan for the collection of claims. But on the other hand it will greatly burden builders, and it must to some extent limit the building operations of men who will not permit themselves to be annoyed with the details of the work. The chief idea of the new law is to give claimants for labor, material, etc., liens upon the owner of the building or improvement, and this idea is followed out in elaborate detail. It puts the men employed upon a work in such relation with the owner as to almost relieve contractors from obligation. The law declares that every man who does labor upon or furnishes material for any building, structure or improvement of any kind shall have a lien upon the same, whether furnished at the instance of the owner or his agent, and every contractor or person having charge of the work in whole or in part shall be considered the agent of the owner for the purposes of the act. The lien upon a structure carries with it a lien upon whatever rights may be in the owner to the ground upon which the structure stands. All liens created by the new law upon any structure are to be preferred to all the prior liens or incumbrances upon the land upon which such structure stands, constructed subsequent to the date upon which the improvement was begun. Every improvement constructed upon any land with the knowledge of the owner or a person having or claiming any interest therein, shall be held to have been constructed at the instance of such owner, and the interest owned or claimed shall be subject to any lien in accordance with this act, unless such owner or person claiming an interest therein shall within three days after he shall have obtained information of such construction, give notice in writing upon some conspicuous place upon said land that he will not be responsible for such improvement. Claimants under this law are required to file their bills with the clerk of the county within sixty days of the last service or after having ceased to furnish material, and the clerk is required to keep a special book for the recording of such claims. Suits may be brought to enforce liens created under the law and the courts upon entering judgments are directed to allow as part of the costs all sums paid for filing and recording the lien and also a reasonable amount for attorney's fees, and all suits to enforce the act are to have precedence over all other civil suits except those to which the state is a party. No payment to a contractor or sub-contractor made within the sixty days' time stated above shall be valid for the purpose of defeating or discharging of any lien, unless such payment so made to such contractor has been paid to laborers, mechanics, material men, etc. If such payment has been so distributed, it shall be valid only to the extent of such distribution. Contractors shall be entitled to recover upon a lien only such amount as may be due to them after deducting all claims of other parties for work and materials furnished. Whenever any mechanic or contractor shall have procured materials for use in any structure such material shall not be subject to attachment for any debt due by the purchaser except that due for the purchase money thereof. Nothing in the present law shall affect any lien heretofore acquired, but the existing lien law is repealed.

Some of the thrifty inhabitants of Japan, where the hard times are felt, have subscribed to a strict code of regulations which might be imitated with advantage in less heathenish countries. They agree that no three persons shall drink together, that tea shall replace all expensive beverages at wedding ceremonies, that at funerals only the relations of the deceased shall take refreshments, and that all shall make their own sandals. All other rites and ceremonies involving expense are temporarily suspended.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser protests against the exhibition of Daniel Webster in the Century as a profane man. Those who knew Mr Webster well, he says, know that no profane word ever fell from his lips, and "to put vulgarity or profanity into his mouth is an outrage. Neither in words of Saxon nor of classic origin was Daniel Webster a profane man." Mr Webster's command of language was so ample and complete that he never needed profanity or slang to express or emphasize his ideas.

The republican party, going out of power, fired the last shot in its locker in the bill to place General Grant on the retired list of the army. The old commander has not long to live, and no living man has served his country as he has done. His inestimable services demanded this recognition, and it ought to have been accorded long ago. It would have been a disgrace to the nation had congress adjourned without passing this bill.

HUBBARD ITEMS

The flourishing blue ribbon club of this place gave an excellent musical, literary and dramatic entertainment last Wednesday night. The president, [illegible] Caldwell, called to order, and after a greeting song by the entire company, and [illegible] music by the brass band, introduced Grand Lecturer Webb, who delivered an appropriate address. Recitations, dialogues, in costume, songs, instrumental duets, a cantata, the Hubbard negro minstrels, etc., followed in quick succession, keeping the crowded house in the best of humor. For amateurs it was really meritorious, and visitors from Salem and Portland gave them much praise. The band generously donated their services and contributed much to the success of the evening. The total receipts were $22 7[illegible], which, less some incidental expenses, will be used for improving the church building.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

KILLED BY AN ENGINE.—Gideon A. Schofield, a resident of Cole's addition to East Portland, about 40 years of age, was run over and instantly killed by an engine backing down from the O. and C. car shops to East Portland at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It appears that Mr. Schofield, who was somewhat infirm and feeble in mind, was left alone by his wife, who had to go down to East Portland to attend to the payment of taxes. She was fatigued with her walk, and stopped at the residence of J. W. Ball for dinner. A little before 3 o'clock Mr. Ball started to take her home in his buggy, and as they were near the line between Stephens' and Fillett's additions they saw a crowd gathered by the railroad track, and on driving up to see what was the matter Mrs. Schofield saw the mangled remains of her husband. He is supposed to have become uneasy at the long absence of his wife, and had probably started for East Portland to find her. The remains were taken charge of by the coroner and an inquest held last evening. George Parrish, who was in charge of the engine at the time of the accident, and several other parties who were on the engine were summoned as witnesses. They testified that the bell was ringing, but none of them had seen the old man till after the engine had passed over him. One foot and one arm had been cut off and death ensued in a few minutes. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

HEAVY VERDICT.—The case of W. E. Holmes vs The Portland Lumbering company in the state circuit court, went to the jury Tuesday evening, and after being out a few hours they returned a sealed verdict. This was opened yesterday morning and was found to be in favor of the plaintiff allowing him $42,804 02. It appears that the lumbering company borrowed $10,000 from Holmes and from other parties sums amounting to $27,217 02, the notes for which were indorsed to Holmes, who sued to recover the whole amount, with interest. The company made an assignment to W. B. Honeyman. Counsel for defense, Messrs. Gearin, Gilbert and Nicholas, set up the defense that the directors of the company had no right to borrow money or issue notes without the sanction of the board of directors, and objected to the introduction of the notes as evidence. The court allowed the notes to be offered in evidence on it being shown that a valuable consideration therefor had been received and used by the company. The amount allowed by the jury was nearly the whole claimed. The plaintiff was represented by Messrs. R. Williams, P. W. Willis and F. Mendenhall.

GRACE CHURCH LYCEUM ENTERTAINMENT.—Nearly every seat in Grace chapel was occupied last evening to witness the second of the series of entertainments given under the direction of the lyceum. The principal item of the evening was the excellent series of stereopticon pictures embracing noteworthy subjects from the sources of the Rhine to Havre, from London to the Orkneys, exhibited by Prof. Gantenbein. Mrs. Albion Francis sang in excellent voice and style a song which called forth an enthusiastic encore. Miss Blanche Hersey was equally well received in her selections for piano, and Mr. Wm. Simpson in an intensely dramatic character sketch. Miss Eulalie Bessup, in her representation of "Arabella's First Party," and Messrs. Durand and Venen, were recalled by the audience. The third and last number on the list is a lecture by Rev. J. Q. A. Henry, to be given on Wednesday evening, March 18.

SETTLED AT LAST.—The ordinance authorizing the city to enter into contract with the United States Electric Light and Power Company contains nearly the same provisions as were mentioned in the original proposition. It is for two years, and the total cost is $16,000 per year payable quarterly. For oil lamps to be erected hereafter, the rate is to be: For "D" burner, $1 05 per month; for "B" burner, $2 05 per month. The electric lights are to burn from twilight to midnight, but if the city so choose it can require them to burn until daylight for the additional compensation of $2000 per annum. The company are required to give bonds in $15,000 for the faithful performance of the contract. It is a relief to know that this vexed question is at last settled, and one thing is certain—the experiment of lighting the principal business streets with electricity is not a costly one.

JOKE ON A PROMINENT STOCKMAN.—An amusing incident occurred at the Gilman the other night that has just leaked out. A prominent stockman from the interior after having enjoyed the well-known hospitality of Manager Eppinger during the evening was shown to his room. About an hour later he rang for the proprietor and when he appeared he found his guest vainly trying to open a bottle of the Star Hand Grenades, and being unable to do so had sent to Mr. Eppinger to borrow his corkscrew. After Mr. Eppinger explained that the blue bottles that are scattered all through the house were fire extinguishers placed there to protect guests from fire, our stock friend saw the joke and the two went down stairs together to find a cork that could be more easily drawn.

WANTS DAMAGES.—The case of J. D. Hurst vs D. W. Burnside was on trial in the state circuit court yesterday. Hurst was employed as a sweeper and oiler in the Imperial mill, at Oregon City, and while, as he says, carefully and prudently oiling the machinery had two of his fingers taken off by a key in a shaft. He accuses Mr. Burnside of all sorts of carelessness and brings suit to recover damages in the sum of $10,000. The testimony for defendant showed that plaintiff had been warned of the dangers of oiling machinery, and that after he had been injured he said he was hurrying up his work and trying to get a little time for himself. The jury will go up to Oregon City this morning to examine the machinery which did the injury.

FALSE ALARM.—The police were thrown into a temporary spasm of activity last evening by a report made by one Sullivan, a carpenter, that there had been a man stabbed in the Glide lodging house on Morrison street, between Third and Fourth. The place is kept by one Shield, who used to run the Sherlock house, and the report seemed likely to be true. Investigation, however, showed that there had been no one hurt, but that Sullivan had been fired out of the place, instead of being allowed to glide out, and he probably made the statement to cause trouble. If he can be found he will find that he has made trouble—for himself.

PERHAPS HE'S ASHAMED.—Several months since a pocket memorandum and diary was found and left at the postoffice for identification but it still remains uncalled for. Possibly the owner will recognize it by the following items of expense under date of "September the 8, 1884:" "bear 10, bear 10, treat 15, dise 15, coffee house 10, belone 10, bear 5, coffee house 10, shuting galery 35, bear 10, dise 20, cards 10, theater 25, dise 20, coffee house 20, pool 15, drinks 45." This makes one think of what Falstaff said about a great deal of beer to very little bread, or words to that effect.

NEW STEAMER IN PORT.—The steamer Alki is in with a cargo of coal from Seattle for the Oregon Improvement Company. The Alki is a new steamer, built at Bath, for the Southern Oregon Improvement Company, and has made three or four trips between Coos Bay and San Francisco, being now under charter to the Oregon Improvement Company for collier purposes. Being of a handy size and fast she can easily supply all local needs of the company, who will run their large steamers to San Francisco. Captain J. W. Gage is in command of the Alki.

WANTS A DIVORCE.—Suit was commenced in the state circuit court yesterday by Ida J. Chew to obtain a divorce from her husband John P. Chew, a colored barber. The unhappy pair were married March 19, 1884, and she complains that he has treated her in an inhuman and cruel manner, beating her and calling her vile names. It is evident that when the ill-assorted couple took hold on matrimonial felicity they bit off more than they could chew. And now they propose to chew the cud of sweet and bitter fancy in single cussedness.

LOCAL INSURANCE COMPANY.—Articles incorporating the Portland Fire and Marine Insurance Company were filed in the office of the county clerk yesterday, by W. S. Mason, Fred Ward, W. H. Creighton, S. B. Riggen, R. B. Thompson and F. A. E. Starr. The purpose for which the company is organized is to carry on a general fire and marine insurance business. The capital stock of the company is $200,000 in shares of $100, and the principal office is to be located in Portland.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning on the demurrer to the complaint in the case of Conroy vs The Oregon Construction Company. Conroy was employed on the Baker City extension of the O. R. & N. Co.'s road and lost his eyesight, as he alleges, by the premature explosion of a blast, owing to defective fuse. He has brought suit against the construction company to recover $30,000 damages.

NOT REPORTED.—No report of the investigation into the affairs of the chief of police was made last night in the city council. The bill of the expert who examined the books was presented and paid. Gerdes said it would have looked better if the committee had presented to the council some evidence that work had been done, but no member of the committee volunteered any reason why the report was held back.

SCHOOL MEETING IN DISTRICT NO. 2.—The annual school meeting in district No. 2 was very largely attended. For director Wash Allen was chosen and Hon. Jeremiah Kelly was unanimously chosen for clerk. The board of directors was ordered to provide more room for the school by renting a building adjacent to the school house.

COMPANY A ELECTION.—A meeting of Company A, First Oregon Infantry, will be held at the armory of the company by order of H. H. Northup, A. A. G., at 8 o'clock this evening for the election of company officers. Major H. F. Freeman will preside at said election and report the result to headquarters.

ONE BILL VETOED.—Governor Moody has signed all the bills passed by the last legislature except one, the bill for the relief of Curry and Baker counties. The reason for the veto was that the bill was imperfect, the name of Baker county having been omitted from the enacting clause.

NOTES FROM SEATTLE

SEATTLE, March [illegible]

The Odd Fellows of Renton are going to build a new hall. S. J. Meany of this city is the architect.

The city authorities are doing good work in the way of planking streets, making sewers and and further needed improvements.

The Swedish Evangelical church, near the corner of Third and Pike streets, has just been completed, and was dedicated recently by Rev. P. Carlson, assisted by the Reverends G. A. Anderson of Tacoma, J. W. Skows of Portland, J. J. Hoppa of Astoria and J. Telleore of San Francisco.

The remains of Martin Nett, the German butcher who was drowned in lake Union on the night of February 20, have not yet been recovered, though a careful search has been made.

The two militia companies have contested in a series of three shoots for a prize offered by the Gordon hardware company. The first contest was won by company D, N. G. W., in a score of 331 to 292. The second and third contests were won by the Seattle Rifles with the score at 354 to 346 and 357 to 352. The Rifles won the prize, and are now doing their full share of crowing over their victory.

Theatrical goers were treated well last week. The Katie Putnam comedy company gave two performances, both of which were for the benefit of Mrs. C. R. Robb, widow of the late Lieutenant Robb of company D, who was shot while at rifle practice. The performances were good, and Miss Putnam is sure to be kindly remembered by the people of Seattle.

L. M. Starr and P. B. Cornwall are in the city. The former gentleman is looking after his property interests, while Mr. Cornwall is making an examination of his interests in the extensive properties of the Black Diamond coal company. He has stated that coal would be shipped from the new mines as soon as it is possible to get the machinery now in Seattle in its place at the mines.

Our citizens have been gratified recently by the appearance upon our streets of three prospective governors of Washington. Beriah Brown we see always, but Dr. Ostrander has suddenly been constrained to visit our city after an absence of thirteen years. The doctor is a citizen of Olympia, and is at present actively engaged in circulating petitions asking his appointment to the coveted position of honor and responsibility. Eugene Semple, one of the principal men of Vancouver, W. T., visited our thriving city several days ago. He also desires the place at the head of our government, and seems confident of obtaining the honors.

The steamship Wilmington sailed for San Francisco yesterday with a small list of passengers and a cargo of freight and coal. The repairs to her machinery were satisfactorily completed by the Washington iron works of this city, one day within the time specified in the contract. It was necessary for the captain to give bonds in the sum of $15,000, his bondsmen being H. L. Yesler and George H. Foster. It seems that while the steamer was disabled and plunging about in the northern waters, that Captain Blackburn hired one of the passengers, a carpenter by the name of J. H. Harding, to aid in repairing the injured machinery and the wages agreed upon were $2 50 per day. On arrival of the boat Mr. Harding seems to have been visited by some lawyer, and was persuaded to sue for salvage. Hence the necessity of giving bonds before the boat could sail for San Francisco.

ALBANY NOTES

ALBANY, March [illegible]

Dr. D. W. Dodd of Scio is in this city on legal business.

Joseph Webber, Jr., of your city, is visiting his parents here.

The new band recently organized have sent for a gorgeous uniform, unequaled in beauty by any in the state.

At the last meeting of the county court, Joseph E. Worth was granted a free scholarship in the state university.

Lewis, the Oregon foot racer, has many friends living in this vicinity who are awaiting the result of his race, to be run this month at Oakland, Cal., with Gibson, the fast Eastern sprint.

Thos. McNary, the man who attempted to commit suicide, is improving, with every prospect of ultimate recovery. Immediately after committing the rash act, when asked why he cut his throat, he gave the laconic reply, "to kill himself."

The residence of Mr. C. C. Cherry came very near being destroyed by fire last Sunday. His little boy getting possession of some matches, started a fire in a closet. The scent of burning cloth attracted Mrs. Cherry's attention, and the fire was with difficulty extinguished before doing much further damage than burning a considerable amount of clothing.

At the regular meeting of the board of school directors, held last Saturday, the following bids for building the new school house were received and opened: Geo. Cline of Salem, $16,3[illegible]; D. W. Zeller of Portland, $16,750; L. E. Conn, $15,[illegible]0; Geo. Patterson, $14,500; J. J. Dorris, $16,[illegible]35; L. C. Dickey, $18,994. Owing to the absence of one of the members of the board, the contract was not let, but will be in a few days.

A large number of taxpayers were present at the annual school meeting held at the court house last evening. The report of the directors showed a sufficient amount of money on hand, with what would be received from the state and county, to run the free school the ensuing year. A tax of two mills was voted for furnishing the new school building when completed. The directors were also, in accordance with the new law, instructed to borrow enough money to complete the school building, they having about $5000 on hand.

OLYMPIA ITEMS

OLYMPIA, March [illegible]

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

The city has been quite excited to-day over the sudden disappearance of Mr. C. B. Harmon, deputy sheriff, whose whereabouts up to the present writing cannot be ascertained. Mr. Harmon has acted as deputy for Sheriff Billings for some time, and was considered so trustworthy that the latter never required a bond from him for the performance of his duties. It is to be hoped for the sake of his family that he may turn up all right.

G. A. R.

The first general inspection of Geo. H. Thomas Post No. 5, G. A. R., was made here last evening by Assistant Inspector General R. G. O'Brien, and was greatly enjoyed by all present. This post numbers thirty three members in good standing with expectations of an increase before long.

An adjourned term of the district court has been in session for the past two days. Hon. J. R. Hoyt presiding.

SYMPATHY FOR GENERAL GRANT

The following greeting, adopted by Garfield post No. [illegible], G. A. R., on Tuesday evening, was wired to General Grant yesterday:

PORTLAND, Or., Mar. [illegible]

[illegible] New York [illegible] Garfield Post No. [illegible] Department of Oregon, G. A. R., [illegible] sympathizes with you [illegible] affliction [illegible]

JAMES F. SHAW,
Post Commander.

AND STILL THERE'S MORE TO FOLLOW.—Among the purchasers of the celebrated Star Hand Grenade fire extinguishers yesterday were the following:

Baer[illegible] & Co.,
Ne[illegible]der Bros.,
Hecht Bros. & Co.,
Frank Bros.,
J. C. Carson,
The steamer Traveler,
Oregon Wool Exchange,
Alisky Baum & Co.,
Thompson, De Hart & Co.,
Woodward, Clark & Co.

No residence or store should be without the celebrated Star Grenades. They are simple, effective and cheap. Their use may save life as well as property. Trade mark: blue bottle with a star.

H. H. GROSS,
Gilman House.

FOR GOOD.—Coulter, the well known and popular tonsorial artist, is moving to the first door west of First, on Morrison, north side of the street, where he will stay for good unless the landlord raises the rent.

PROFESSOR FELIS' LECTURE

[illegible] of Forest Grove [illegible] lecture last evening [illegible] entitled "Unsolved Problems." The [illegible] motto of civilization is not ne plus ultra but plus ultra, and by the very nature of human thought [illegible] will always be [illegible] [illegible] After giving an excellent [illegible]

[illegible]

The problem of problems is the fortunes of [illegible] government. "If," said the speaker, "I [illegible] something he could for the greatest [illegible] history of man [illegible] [illegible] Another problem will be the life of immense [illegible] their adjustment to the general good. [illegible] party contains problematic [illegible] is when the machinery is as multiplied and the [illegible] as great as seems now to be the [illegible] of growth. A distinction was well stated between false socialism and true socialism. The instinct of liberty and fair play was traced from the barbarism of Caesar's time down to the present day. This spirit of enlightened enthusiasm for humanity the lecturer on the whole deemed sure to triumph over every obstacle and give us the spectacle of advancing triumph of man's spiritual and reasonable history.

The lecture was preceded by excellent music, an instrumental solo by Miss Dalton, and a song by M. R. Von Rehren.

PUBLIC GREEN MARKET

What the Farmers of the Surrounding Country Want Established in the City—Benefits to Producers and Consumers

[illegible]

Councilman Andrus thought Yamhill street from Second to Seventh would be the proper place to permit the hucksters' wagons to stand with horses [illegible]

Councilman [illegible] said he believed that property owners along Yamhill street and [illegible] for that matter would be benefited [illegible]. He favored taking down the fences around one of the city plazas and after macadamizing it let that be used for a permanent market place.

Councilman [illegible] thought this could not be done for the reason that the city held a title to only one half of the plaza, which likewise prohibited them from putting it to any other use than that of a public park.

Councilman [illegible] expressed himself strongly in favor of the establishment of a market place, saying that the city was certainly lacking enough in public institutions. Why, said he, in other cities there is not so much even as a watering trough. And this reminds me, he continued, "to ask what has become of the Skidmore fountain fund. When S. G. Skidmore died he bequeathed [illegible] $5000 for the building of a public fountain. That was about two years ago, and [illegible] that [illegible] has been said about it. [illegible] It seems to me that it is about time some thing was done in the matter."

Councilman Andrus thought the city could do nothing, as it had never been notified officially of the bequest and knew nothing of it except through the newspaper reports.

All the councilmen agreed if the money had been bequeathed to the city for a public fountain it was about time something was done. The reporter of THE OREGONIAN who was present was asked to mention the subject in his report.

"If such a fountain were established," said Councilman Holland, "there would not be so much beer drunk here in the summer. But why the people must need," he continued, pulling a fresh weed from his pocket and lighting it, "is a cigar fountain."

After this sudden outburst of wit upon the part of the councilman from the First ward the meeting lagged a little, and soon after adjourned without deciding upon a definite report to be made to the council on the market question. Yesterday, however, they concluded to report in favor of Yamhill street.

WANTS LESS INCOMPREHENSIVENESS

County Surveyor Marye yesterday submitted a report to the county court. The document covers eight closely written pages of legal cap, and is a model in its way. We make room for the following extracts:

Gentlemen: With all honor of [illegible] and right in conducting the affairs of the county surveyor's office I am compelled to communicate to your Honorable body the needful want of information necessary in conducting the affairs of this office, which at this time is not to be had with in the office. [illegible] I am aware your Honorable body are and have been endeavoring to conduct the financial affairs of this county on a most just and economical method and are determined to accomplish that end so far as your ability will permit you to do. Yet how can it when does our ability in the capacity fall to comprehend the useful necessaries of those whose occupation throughout life has made his profession a profound study and knows by experience only.

Here follow some suggestions about books of record, a county map and road plats, which are needed to ornament the bare walls of the surveyor's office. The document winds up with the following brilliant and lucid peroration:

The communication already written is somewhat longer than I intended making it, yet my thoughts cannot be fully concentrated by me as others whose arts of collecting thoughts to as limited amount of words and probably convey a more fruitful meaning. I appeal to your honorable body as an early man and [illegible] servant of the people and with all good and honest intentions to [illegible] the workings of this office in a more simple and less method of inquire hensiveness in obtaining that which is essential to the necessary information required in my official capacity.

COMMERCIAL.

WEDNESDAY, March 4.

A light rain has fallen at intervals since last evening. The markets are generally slow, with only a fair business doing.

During February 364,945 lbs hops, 2725 lbs hides, 83,246 lbs wool, 8305 cs 276 hf 381 bbls salmon, 5 cs teasels, 171 pkgs dried fruit, 17 pkgs leather went eastward by rail. Of the hops 8671 lbs were for London direct. Case salmon shipments were: Astoria Pkg Co. 1077, Cape Fox brand 143, Scandinavian Pkg Co. 400, D. L. Beck & Sons 975, Washington Pkg Co. 1000, Balfour, Guthrie & Co. 425, Cutting 425, Clements 600, Pillar Rock 450, G. T. Myers 900 and F. M. Warren 1050 cases.

Shipments by rail to Puget sound points, etc., during February included 1826 sks wheat, 15,266 qr sks flour, 403 sks oats, 700 sks barley, 3556 sks bran, 1505 sks other feed, 18 sks corn, 120 sks malt, 110 cs eggs, 115 cs cured meats, 210 cs lard, 125 pkgs butter, 351 bxs fruit.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours: 4685 ctls wheat, 257 bbls flour, 200 ctls oats, 152 ctls bran, 118 ctls millstuff, 590 sks potatoes, 1330 lbs hides, 173 cs eggs, 304 bxs fruit, 14 pkgs butter. Also 0866 ctls wheat, 900 bbls flour, 1840 lbs hides, 30 bxs fruit from the eastern section.

Receipts for the seven days ending Wednesday noon aggregate 97,670 ctls wheat, 4653 bbls flour, 3925 ctls oats, 356 ctls bran, 765 ctls millstuff, 6793 sks potatoes, 19,797 lbs wool, 336,139 lbs hops, 37,562 lbs hides, 197 sks flaxseed, 1025 bbls lime, 1013 bxs fruit, 632 cs eggs, 64 pkgs butter. Of the wheat 33,840 ctls were valley product, and of the flour 1798 bbls were valley. For the same date last year wheat receipts were 4404 ctls valley and 8643 ctls eastern, and flour 3095 bbls valley and 1102 bbls eastern.

Receipts by leading transportation lines since August 1, as compared with a like time last cereal year have been:

WHEAT—Firmer markets are cabled and telegraphed to-day. This creates little new interest here where holders have all along held views above the shippers' idea. Receipts might be called very free for the time of year and actual wants are in no way larger. Quote valley $1 17½@1 20.

OATS—The market shows no change either in general conditions or in values.

POTATOES—Fair request, 20c being paid for good Garnet Chiles.

EGGS—Receipts heavy last night, but there is a good outside demand and the market is steady at 16c.

POULTRY—Quote chickens $3@4. Turkeys sold at 10@12½c.

PROVISIONS—Market rules quiet at unchanged prices. Stocks are generally large, but packers are not pressing sales. Low values at the east are an influence that time alone will change. We quote local jobbing prices: City cured hams 12@13c, bacon 10@11c, shoulders 6@7c, eastern bacon 10½@11c, hams 13@15c; country cured meats sell ¼@½c less than city. Lard in free supply and hardly steady at 11½@12c for eastern choice tins, 11@11½c for local choice pails and 8@9c for larger packages.

DRIED FRUIT—The market shows no sign of improvement, the common sorts being in too large supply to admit of a better feeling. Jobbing values are: Sun cured apples 5c, factory 6@8c, prunes 8c, plums 8@10c, peaches 12½@13c; new raisins $2 25 per full box.

WOOL—A few growers have visited this market with a view of placing their coming clips, and more have already arranged for consignments. If fair prices are obtainable the movement will be early. Growers as a rule do not hold extreme ideas, because there is nothing in the situation to warrant high expectations. The nominal figure now is 10@13c, but this hardly represents the market. Koshland Bros., of this city, have issued a circular to growers, from which we extract the following: "The season of 1884 was the first on the completion of the overland road which placed us in direct communication with the eastern centers. Last year our firm sold 1,300,000 lbs to local manufacturers and 1,500,000 lbs for the eastern markets. These sales were made rapidly and realized more than the results of our own trials in San Francisco or the results of other shipments to that market. The results of the speculative shipments by growers direct to the east were generally disastrous, and there is little chance of a repetition. From the fact within our knowledge that more buyers purpose being in our market during the coming season, and the general result having been so favorable during the past year, we unhesitatingly and strongly advise you to forward your clip to us here for sale." This circular but expresses general sentiment, and those growers who last season consigned east can best realize its truth. Portland this year offers even better inducements than it did last. Our grading houses have established a reputation for correct grading, their work of last year being entirely satisfactory to buyers at the east. Of freight rates, commissions and storage charges it is unnecessary to refer, but growers will do well to at least see what can be done in Portland before consigning to other points on the strength of circulars from houses that they know nothing of. It is desirable to have clips at a point that is a market center in order to realize promptly when the time for selling appears to have arrived. The large quantity of wool that annually seeks this market, together with the quantity already secured by houses here to handle, promises to make this a central market. In that case it is useless to point out the advantages of forwarding to local houses whose reputation is known and who have the best possible facilities.

The Merchandise Market.

A very fair business is to be reported for the week, and trade wears a more cheerful look. We have few value changes to report, nor are new influences of a striking character. Importations of merchandise have continued of about the usual proportions, and were mostly for assortment purchases.

A review of the San Francisco market for last week contains the following: Coffee has been quite actively dealt in since the arrival of the steamer Granada, on the 20th inst., with 8890 bags Central American, new crop. The market was comparatively bare, especially of Salvador, hence the 3317 bags, all of that kind received, were taken by local dealers as soon as offered; the balance of the consignment, consisting of 1015 bags Costa Rica and 4558 bags Guatemala, have been steadily distributed. From Japan late telegraphic dispatches advise a further advance in teas. In New York the late rise in values is well maintained. Local dealers report increased business for the week, but no improvement in prices, which condition is favorable to buyers and is maintained by reason of strong competition. Common Japans are becoming scarce; of all other descriptions the supply is ample to meet the prospective home demand. The general trade is disposed to avail itself of the present low prices of sugars by laying in stocks for future needs, and both refineries are taxed to their full capacity in filling orders. The Alvarado beet sugar factory has turned out upwards of 2,000,000 pounds of white sugar this season, and has sufficient stock on hand to enable it to continue in active operation about two months longer. Refined syrups are at the present in moderate demand; the price of American golden in five gallon kegs has been reduced to 27½c per gallon this week.

China rice is in fair demand; old mixed is steady at $6 50 per two mats, and new mixed at $4 70@4 75. Hawaiian has suffered a slight decline, the present rate being $4 87½ cash, and $5 usual time. The declaring of rice a contraband of war by France is likely to favorably affect values. Spices are in fair supply with but a moderate trade reported. Pepper is firm at quotations. Cloves are now held at 17@18½c, a slight advance on former price, which is the only change reported. Dealers in French goods report a light business for the week. Sardines in quarter boxes are firmer, half boxes have declined 15c per dozen, the outside price now being $2 10. Castile soap moves slowly at rates quoted for the imported article. The remaining stock of salmon in first hands is chiefly choice and fancy brands Columbia, Coquille and Alaska, and they are firmly held. Canned tabled fruits are without material change in price, although dealers report an improved demand from eastern markets and a more active movement. Codfish is in better demand and prices are lower. Ordinary brands of Liverpool salt have declined 50c per ton. The price of nails has been advanced to $3 25 per keg for 10 to 50d by the local manufacturers. Tinplate shows more strength by reason of increased inquiry and the near approach of the salmon canning season. The Benmore sailed from Calcutta January 29, leaving nothing loading at that port for San Francisco. Several vessels, all with more or less bags, are en route, and one, the Dawpool, is fully due. The market is unchanged.

THE LOCAL MARKET.

BEANS—Butter and small whites steady at 2¾c; bayos and pinks firm at 2½c. Bayos are tending up.

BREAD, ETC.—Market steady at ship, 3½c; pilot, 5@5½c; soda crackers, 5@6c; others, 6@10c.

COAL OIL—Increased trading dulls the market and prices are less firm. Good brands selling off to 22@26c. Inferior brands quiet at 20@20c.

COFFEE—Values very firm, not responding to rather better markets elsewhere. Quote Rio, 12½c; Costa Rica, 12½c; Salvador and Guatemala 11½c; best Java, 20c.

CANNED GOODS—Market moves along quietly, present stocks meeting all requests. Quote corn, $1 25@1 50; tomatoes, 2½s, $1 10, gallons, $3 50; pie peaches, $1 50@1 75; table peaches, $2 50; assorted pie fruits, 2½s, $1 60; gallons, $4.

PICKLES—Kegs, $1 10@1 25.

RICE—Market very firm but prices are no higher as yet. Everything points to an advance. Quote Island $5 50, China mixed $4 75.

SALT—Receipts from domestic sources very light, recent direct arrivals meeting all needs. Quote fine Liverpool $16, $18 and $20, as to size of bags, and half-ground coast $9 50@10 50.

HONEY—Combed 15@16c, strained 6@7c.

CHEESE—Quiet and slow. Best local 12@14c, imported 12@16c.

SUGAR—Steady with good business doing. Quote barrels: Extra C 6⅛c, Golden C 5⅝c, D 5½c, cube crushed and fine crushed, and powdered 7½c, dry granulated 7⅛c.

GRAIN BAGS, ETC.—Wheat sacks in light call quoted 8½c. Wool bags are being received and are quoted 38@40c; sewing twine 35c.

THE MEAT MARKET.

Quotations are prices paid to dealers by slaughterers for whole carcasses or on foot.

BEEF—Market supplied with stall fed, little grass beef expected for a time. Quote 4@4½c gross, choice being firmly held.

MUTTON—Quote 3½c gross all around. Very choice might do better.

VEAL—Scarce at 8@11c.

HOGS—Quiet and slow at 5½@6c dressed and 4@4½c live.

Miscellaneous Freights—Ship Richard Third, coal, Departure Bay to S. F.; schr H. L. Tiernan, merchandise, to Marshall's Island.

Wheat—Spot, the market is firm with a good undertone; No. 1 shipping $1 27½ bid; very little offering. Futures, in better business; No. 1 white, buyer the season, $1 37@1 37½. Closed shade higher, $1 37½ buyer the season.

Barley—Spot market steady at 92½@95c; fair business doing in futures; No. 1 feed, seller season, 92½c; buyer season, 95½@96¼c.

Barley—Closed higher, 96¼ buyer the season.

Oats—Generally much the same features as before reported.

Hops—Neglected; no business doing.

Bran—Offerings are liberal and market not so firm; quote $11@11 50.

Potatoes—Offerings are in excess of the demand, and market easier; quote Oregon 50@65c.

Onions—Oregon, 1¾@2¼c; demand slow.

Butter—Weak and tending lower; stocks accumulating and concessions frequent; quote fresh roll 18@20c.

Eggs—Weak at 16@16½c for fresh California.

Apples—Common 50@75c, choice $1 50@2.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Wheat, the market opened firmer, April 75½@75⅞c, May 80¼@80⅝, June 82¼c. Provisions higher; pork, $12 55 March; lard, $7 00 March; ribs, $6 35 March; short ribs, $6 40 cash.

CALIFORNIA.

AN APPEAL TO THE LEGISLATURE.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The following self explanatory telegram was sent to Sacramento to-day:

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4, 1885.

Hon. W. B. May, Assembly Chamber, Sacramento: I fear the decision of the supreme court admitting Chinese will demoralize our schools. But one remedy remains for the legislature to declare urgent the passage of bills already introduced by you to establish separate Chinese classes. Without such action I have every reason to believe that some of our classes will be inundated by Mongolians. Trouble will follow.

ANDREW J. MOULDER,
Supt. of Schools.

THE SHARON DIVORCE CASES.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—Counsel for Sarah Althea Hill-Sharon to-day requested an order in the United States circuit court staying all proceedings in that court in the suit of Sharon vs. Hill until judgment in the suit of Sharon vs. Sharon in the superior court shall become final. Judge Sawyer denied the motion.

PARDONED BY THE PRESIDENT.

John Best, who embezzled a large sum of money while acting as chief clerk for Colonel Williamson, late United States light house inspector, and who was sentenced about two years ago to ten years' imprisonment in the state prison, was yesterday pardoned by President Arthur.

RESCUED ONLY TO DIE.

Martina Lee and Mo Nam, the two white baby girls recently rescued from the Chinese by the authorities, have died. Their deaths are supposed to have been caused by the change from the hot atmosphere of the Chinese house to the cooler air of the hospitals where they were placed.

INAUGURATION DAY.

There was a considerable display of national colors in San Francisco to-day, in honor of the inauguration of President Cleveland. Flags waved over many of the fine buildings of Kearney, Montgomery, California, Market and Sansome streets.

BREAK IN THE BEEF MARKET.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The beef market is badly broken. Sales were made yesterday at 7½ cents for first grade, with little demand. Very little beef was killed yesterday, some of the yards killing none at all.

ATTRACTIONS FOR NEW MARKET.

J. P. Howe, manager of New Market theater, Portland, is here, and has secured several attractions. Among them is the "McKee-Rankin Company," "Charley Reed's Minstrels" and "The Shadows of a Great City."

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Arrived—Bark Aurora, Tacoma. Cleared—Steamer Columbia, Astoria.

STATE DISPATCHES.

GIANT POWDER EXPLOSION.

ASHLAND, March 3.—A terrible explosion of giant powder took place this afternoon in town. Grant Helman was digging a well, and, having some blasting to do, thought he would use a giant powder cartridge. It was thought necessary to warm the cartridge, which he placed under the stove, thinking there was no cap on it; and, becoming warm, the explosion took place with terrible force, completely smashing the stove and throwing Helman, who was sitting near, against the walls with such force as to shatter his right arm so badly that amputation was necessary. He was very badly bruised otherwise, and it is a miracle that he was not killed outright. The house was considerably damaged. It is thought Helman will live.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

INAUGURATION DAY AT WALLA WALLA.

WALLA WALLA, March 4.—Inauguration day passed off quietly. The Statesman office alone was decorated and fired off 100 guns. Mrs. C. A. Newell gave an inauguration party, which was a great success.

AT OLYMPIA.

OLYMPIA, March 4.—Business houses are generally decorated with bunting, and the town has a holiday aspect, in honor of inauguration day.

COMMENT ON THE NEW ADMINISTRATION.

LONDON, March 4.—The Daily News says editorially: "President Cleveland will have the hearty sympathy of England. It is our desire that there should be perpetual peace, growing friendship and increased commerce. Everything bringing us nearer together in interest and feeling is a gain to both, and to peace and freedom throughout the world."

The Standard speaks of the inaugural address of President Cleveland in a mournful tone. It says: "He carefully avoided ticklish issues. His speech was manly and sensible, but void of distinct declaration of democratic policy. There was nothing tangible in the address either to condemn or admire." The Standard thinks the outlook for Cleveland's administration gloomy because he has no war record to back him.

The Times says: "The inaugural address is conceived in a worthy spirit, but throws no light upon the main question awaiting solution."

SPORTING NOTES.

ROLLER SKATING MATCH.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The score in the roller skating contest this afternoon stood Donovan 531, Schock 530 miles.

GENERAL GRANT'S CONDITION.

NEW YORK, March 4.—General Grant's condition is unchanged. He rested favorably last night, and was late in rising this morning.

Colonel Fred. Grant says General Grant rested easier, and was in all respects better to-day than yesterday.

THE LAST GUN OF THE REPUBLICANS.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Grant retiring bill passed both houses this morning amid thunders of applause. It has been signed by the president and was unanimously confirmed by the senate in open session.
